It was a welrd, wild, unearthly sound; a sound that would, if heard constantly and at fixed intervals, drive a man to drink or to change his boarding house.

It had long since driven him to drink, but he wouldn't move because he was mashed on the blonde girl at the next table.

But on this particular morning, as the specter sound stalked into his room and bored bike-tire punctures in his ear drums, he resolved upon murder. e resolved upon murder. He would slay this miserable, slumber racking ghost, which, with the cats in the earlier part of the night, and the fat man in the next room snoring all night, made his life a "perfect", or novelistic words to that effect. The amount of ignorance of these laws I encounter among my patients whose educational advantages have been slight is appalling, while with those of comparatively good education it is often lamentably bad. If the term 'false modesty' ever fitted anything, it is this question."

PRESIDENT M'KINLEY A SPECTATOR

Presentation of Monument to United States Government.

ADDRESSES AND MUSIC

In the beautiful arena which the surroundings of Scott Circle furnish occurred yesterday afternoon the exercises in con-nection with the unveiling and presentation of the monument erected by the Amer-ican Institute of Homeopathy in memory of Samuel Hahnemann, the founder of that school of medicine. The weather was perrangements which had been made were faithfully carried out. In every particular this event, which was the culmination of eight years of effort, and which was the main feature of the great gathering of homeopaths now in session in this city, was a source of satisfaction to all those inter-

Chairs were provided, and there were seated members of the institute and the general public, the throng extending out over the sidewalks and pavements. About the statue were grouped those who took part in the exercises and the distinguished guests.

President McKinley a Spectator. President McKinley was an interested spectator, his arrival being announced by the Marine Band playing "Hall to the Chief." The District government was represented by the president of the board of District Commissioner, Mr. H. B. F. Macfarland. Gen. John M. Wilson and Mr. Corteiyou, President McKinley's secretary, were also seated on the platform.

Dr. J. B. Gregg Custis of this city, a member of the committee, which had direction of the effort which resulted in the success of the monument undertaking, presided, and in calling the assemblage to order he made some remarks, in the course of which he said:

"We have gathered together upon an oc-order he made some remarks, in the course of which he said:

"We have gathered together upon an occasion which in some of its aspects is solemn, in some glorlous, in all momentous. Solemn, because we have assumed the responsibility of setting as an ideal for those who shall appear upon the world's stage in the twentieth century a character. The man to whom this monument is erected offers an ideal which, if attained by any in the field of science, in the realm of wisdom, in the art of medicine, or in the school which he represented, would justly entitle them to honorable recognition, and secure for them a similar memorial—a memorial constituting the grandest testimonial ever received by any in the walks of life followed by our confrere, Samuel Hahnemann.

Glorious, Momentous.

"Glorious, because it represents a com-pleted work, conceived in Washington, nurtured by the American Institute of Homeopathy, and made possible by the liberality of the adherents and patrons of the school founded by him in whose honor this grand founded by him in whose honor this grand work of art and architecture is erected. "Momentous, because it places in bold relief the fact that truth, represented simply by a thought, can, in so short a time, in a country whose motto is fredom, reach its highest development, and certainly that has been reached when it can count among its adherents a sufficient number of grateful and admiring followers to erect in honor of him who gave this thought expression such a monument as this, as a proof of their admiration of the faith possessed, the singleness of purpose shown

An invocation was offered by Rev. B. F. Bittinger, D. D., of this city, after which Dr. J. H. McClelland of Pittsburg, the chairman of the monument committee, formally, on the part of the committee, in a brief but eloquent address, presented the monument to the institute.

The Unveiling. The statue of Hahnemann was then unveiled, while the strains of "America" were played by the band. In accepting the ionument and presenting it to the government the president of the institute, Dr. C. E. Walton, of Cineinnati, paid a warm E. Walton, of Cincinnati, paid a warm tribute to the efforts of the members of the monument committee. He said:

"Their labors make it possible, in this memorable year 1990, which marks on the dial of time the dividing point of centuries, to rear in our nation's capital this beautiful monument commemorating at once the genius of Samuel Hahnemann and the loyalty of of his followers."

An original ode, written for the occasion by Dr. Win. Tod Helmuth of New York city, was read by the author. As the representative of the government, Colonel Theodore A. Bingham, U. S. A. in resentative of the government, Color Theodore A. Bingham, U. S. A., charge of public buildings and grounds, a charge of public buildings and grounds, accepted the monument with some brief, but appropriate remarks. He said in part:

"This monument and statue will be the nineteenth to come under the jurisdiction of the government in the District of Columbia, making twenty-three in all within the old boundary line of the city of Washington. It is with great pleasure that I have the honor, as the government's officer in charge of public buildings and grounds in the District of Columbia, to accept this monument on behalf of the government, and I assure you that every care will be taken for its preservation."

Address by Attorney General. "The Star Spangled Banner" was played by the Marine Band, after which attorney General Griggs delivered an address. He said that in the center of this park stands the statue of a great warrior, General Scott; on the other side is the statue of a great statesman and orator, Daniel Webster. Here on this side, with great apster. Here on this side, with great ap-propriateness, has been placed the statue of a scientist, a reformer, a good phylsican. There is, said he, but one test of worthi-ness, and that is that a man shall have wrought in unselfishness, in the interests of his country, of humanity and the world. It was the merit of Dr. Hahnemann, he said, that he exposed fallacy uncovered that he exposed fallacy, uncovered ruth and uncovered errors.

At the conclusion of the address the audlence gave three cheers for President Mc-Kinley, who bowed his acknowledgment, and then the ceremonies were closed with by the Supreme Lodge of the Knights of Honor. This is among the largest of the mutual benefit societies, and it has branches in most parts of the United States. After discussion, the Supreme Lodge de cided that the Eddyites in particular, and faith curists in general, owing to their contempt for the sanitary precautions taught by modern science and observed by the sane and intelligent element in all civilized communities, and especially because of their refusal to submit themselves when ill to the care of trained physicians, are the most dangerous of risks, from an insurance standpoint, and hereafter shall not be admitted to membership in the Knights of Honor. The decision is an eminently sensible one, and the need for making it has often been asserted in this column. The delay of the other mutual societies and of the regular insurance companies in adopting the same policy of exclusion against the faith cure fanatics is really inexplicable. Many a person to whom insurance is now refused because of maladies more or less serious is an appreciably better risk than a stalwart "scientist" to whom sanitation is an impious farce, the existence of infectious maladies an engligible delusion and the preservation of health a mer matter of assertion and belief. Such people are obviously exposed to numberless most dangerous of risks, from an insurance mere matter of assertion and belief. Such people are obviously exposed to numberless dangers from which others are comparatively safe, and their chances of recovery in case of illness are simply those given by nature, assisted only by imagination. If insured at all, it should certainly be at materially increased rates.

WINTER AS A TONIC.

Cold as an Invaluable Stimulant to the Human System.

the Human System.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Many persons regard the winter season as an unfortunate visitation. It is considered both uncomfortable to the body and harmful to health. This is an error. Cold is a most potent agent for the restoration and preservation of normal activity on the part of the organs of the human body. It is a wise plan of Providence which gives us a change of seasons.

The winter cold comes as a tonic to repair the injuries done by the enervating heat of summer. Summer, it is true, has many wise uses in the matter of health. It induces outdoor life rids the system of points.

Mr. George M. Bowers, United States fish commissioner, whose home is in Martinsburg burg, w. Va., is preparing for the location of a fish hatching station along the Potomac river under an act recently passed by Congress. The bill appropriates $25,000 and gives Commissioner Bowers the authority to select a site and to carry out the details of the work.

Hagerstown will celebrate the Fourth of July with elaborate ceremonies. There will be the dedication of the Spanish cannon and big parade in the morning, battle ernoon and fantastical parade in the evening. In addition there will be a band constitution of the state of the work.

Winter is the great bracer of the system. It stimulates activity in every organ. When cold attacks the surface of the body the blood is set into more free circulation as a means of bodily warmth. It is through the circulation of the blood that the human an means of bodlly warmth. It is through the circulation of the blood that the human anatomy is kept in a state of repair.

When the food has been digested and converted into liquid form it is taken up by the blood and carried the rounds of the system for the purpose of repairing the waste places. When the cold causes increased circulation it also brings about more perfect nutrition.

Man's face and hands illustrate how weather-proof the body becomes when exposed to air. Continued activity in circulation on the surface, caused by the air coming in contact with the skin, tends to nourish and thicken the skin. Thus man's skin grows thicker in winter, just as animals are supplied with a double coat of fur. The savages who dwell bareheaded in the open air are seldom, if ever, known to be afflicted with bald heads, while, with the civilian who shields his scalp from air, baldness is prevalent.

The Indians who, if not now, in former days roamed our western borders, practically without clothing to shelter their bodies, became, through long exposure, so inured to cold that it gave them but little discomfort.

CURIOUS TRAITS.

A Mental Degenerate Who Developed Into a Murderer. "Speaking of the peculiar traits of men," said a Washington physician, a specialist,

"reminds me of a case which you will have to travel pretty far to duplicate. "You may recall a young fellow named Dan Driscoll, who was hanged for murder in New York, a few years ago. Driscoll was the leader of the 'Why-Ho' gang, the toughest in the city, whose headquarters were around Pell street, a district now occupled by the Chinese.

"Driscoll used to bite off the tails of cats and kittens. He would go around among the saloons of the Bowery and Chatham square, pick up a cat or kitten, hold it so that it could not scratch, and bite the animal's tail in two.

"This strange mania may be considered so extraordinary as to be false, but it is "This strange mania may be considered so extraordinary as to be false, but it is literally true. While it is one of the most singular traits of a depraved mental degenerate that I ever heard of, or saw recorded in the books devoted to mental degeneracy, it represents a perfectly understood condition among medical men. The struggles and screams of the cats no doubt appealed to his sense of pleasure, and he bit their tails off with sensations akin to those experienced by a vicious boy when he stones a cat to death. That Driscoll was hanged as a marderer was to be expected, and his end was a fitting one for such a man. It is my recollection that the murder was unprovoked and that the victim was a woman." was a woman.

AN ADMIRAL'S AVERSION. .

What May Be the Consequences of Eating Too Much of One Dish. "I was dining with Admiral Dryfus of Virginia, formerly of the confederate navy, one evening in Richmond," said Edward Marshall, the author and journalist, "and I ordered my favorite dish of broiled sardines. There isn't much of a sardine to broil, but what there is of the little fish thus prepared is most delicious. "When the diminutive products of the Maine coast were brought before me I observed the admiral turn pale and show evidences of physical distress. He asked me to be kind enough to have the dish removed and another substituted.

"When it had disappeared, my friend's normal good nature returned, and he explained. It seems that he sailed to the Pacific coast before the war, in a ship which had an unusually long and tempestuous passage. The provisions ran short and they were compelled to rely upon the cargo for food. The only edibles were cases of tinned sardines and boxes of soda crackers. The crew and passengers lived on sardines and crackers until their stomachs refused to tolerate these delicacies. They were in danger of actual starvation, when another ship fortunately hove in sight, and enough supplies were obtained to last until San Francisco was reached. Since then the sight of sardines is intolerable to the admiral." normal good nature returned, and he ex-

Would you like to read it, dear?" "Dear" said she would, indeed, but with an assent and a tone of indescribable affected gaiety and interest which some men say women manifest when they are not getting these precious missiles themselves, and have to read those of other girls to know what it is to receive love letters.

"Oh," she cried, "do let me see it."
Thanks. Why, how odd. I can't read it." "Well, I can, all right," responded the girl in white, with a superior air. "You must remember that Charles has been writing the typewriter only two weeks, and it is the best the dear boy can do at present, but his heart is in the right place, even if he can't find the right letters on the keyboard at the right time. Now listen."

Two fluffy heads adorned with huge spring hats were pressed closely together as the red lips of the girl in white poured into the ears of the other the rhapsodical effusion of dear Charley.

Unfortunately for the recipient of the letter, when they left the Georgetown car the precious document fell unobserved from her hand to the floor. Here it is:
